

Parth Chopra

Writer/Director

A highly enthusiastic and passionate filmmaker, Parth lives up to the meaning of his name: The person who never misses his target. The wait is always to find another project on which Parth can jump on board, and bring nothing less than perfection on his part. In the process, more often than not, his charm and positively refreshing outlook on life ends up inspiring others along the way, as everyone who has worked with Parth would tell you. Deeply influenced by the finest writer/directors of this century and the one before, Parth has picked up on a natural visual storytelling knack. But that is not all, his innate leadership skills have a way to make people feel that they are not just working for or on a project, but they are truly a part of one; the philosophy of inclusion as he calls it. If the man for the job is someone who understands the technicalities and the art side, a dependable man who knows how to plan, organize and co-ordinate, a smiling man who keeps the morale of everybody involved high, then you are reading his resume.
