Writer Advances to Finalist Category for Screenwriting – Nashville Film Festival

Nashville, TN, August 8, 2023 – Will Sims, of Ruach Films and Tru-Spot Technologies, has advanced to Finalist in the prestigious Nashville Film Festival’s Screenwriting Competition. Sims’ Short Script, Cotton’s Sack, very recently advanced to the Finalist stage in the Short Script Category.

Cotton’s Sack centers around life in the small Mississippi town of Brandon and features an exceptional storyline concerning the premise of a Generational Family Heirloom (a sharecropper’s cotton sack), which is the catalyst for creation of personal body camera technology created by his tech. company, Tru-Spot Technologies. The personal body cameras are embedded in Tru-Spot’s sports clothing apparel - created to aide everyday citizens who fall prey to mass shootings, unfair police arrests and violent crimes.

Sims says, “I’m extremely Honored to be recognized as a Finalist in this year’s Nashville’s Film Festival Screenwriting Competition. Initially, I was elated when notified of a Quarter-Finalist selection, and a few weeks later as Semi-Finalist. However, to recently receive the notification that my short script – Cotton’s Sack has advanced to the Finalist category, is truly a Lifelong Dream Realized, after many years of grinding out scripts and short film projects. It just feels so Amazing to have all five of my film and script projects receive multiple Awards and Selections on the independent film festival circuit this year, thus far, upon finally releasing them to the universe. Fifteen... total, so far, we’ll see what the final tally is by end of year!”

The Nashville Film Festival presents the best in independent film and screenwriting, including world cinema, U.S. indies, narratives, documentaries, and numerous short form programs by veteran masters, up-and-coming directors, and first-time filmmakers. NashFilm films have won the highest honors in the film world including multiple Academy Award nominees and Oscar awards. <https://nashvillefilmfestival.org/>
