I started my artistic career in 1995 as an assistant director in the theater group of Shahid Beheshti University. At that time, I was a software engineering student in this university and I was also engaged in artistic activities in addition to my studies. There I learned the basics of dramatic literature such as playwriting and directing. In the same years, I became interested in cinema and studied cinema books and movie reviews. I read Syd field's Basics of Screenwriting and as an exercise I wrote a screenplay called "Date on the Beach".

I completed the full filmmaking training course at the Art Center and the documentary filmmaking training course at the Documentary House. I also participated in a number of educational workshops. In these training sessions, I learned from Farshad Fadayian, Mehrdad Oskoui, Mohammadreza Watandoost, and Mehdi Zamanpour.

In 2011, I directed my first short film called "The Sound of Water Footsteps". In 2013, I wrote and directed the first feature-length documentary film titled "Original Identity". Of course, this was not a professional film and was merely a filmmaking exercise. In 2018, I made a short experimental documentary called "College of Girls", which was about women's rights. This film was shown in a number of international festivals and was appreciated. The experimental documentary called "Aghajan Cinema Actor" was the first semi-professional feature film that was made in 2021 and was screened at some international festivals.

In addition to these, I have designed and implemented a large number of educational videos, animations, promotional teasers and trailers. I have also been a supervisor in student projects in the field of multimedia, animation and game making.
