EDUCATION

Bachelor of media and communications 2022 - Present
Screen Production | Edith Cowan University

- Learning how to operate industry level camera and lighting gear.
- Attending talks and lectures featuring appearances from industry professionals.
- Writing and discussing scripts and films to dissect how movies are crafted and how they appeal to a larger audience.
- Gaining hands on film set experience with like minded people who are equally as passionate about creativity.

In my last semester at university I had the opportunity to do a 6 month internship at the Western Australia Screen and Media Academy. Working on the production of their 2025 slate of films, my roles included second Assistant director on two of the films as well as standby props person on another film.

This internship taught me how industry sets operate and working with a crew of around 45 people gave me the chance to network and learn at a larger scale. My jobs throughout the internship included building the call-sheets for each filming day and thereby directing each cast and crew member where to go. As well as making sure each day ran as smoothly as possible. Conversely my role as a standby props person involved representing the art department on set and problem solving where necessary.

Chisholm Catholic College 2016 - 2021

- Choosing electives to find what I was passionate about
- Joining the debating team and going up against schools.
- Dedicating time to my 4 ATAR subjects while balancing a health life balance.

In my last few years of high school I used my spare time to volunteer and film college productions and help with the recording of assemblies. I offered to record days like the colour run, sporting events and ANZAC day services. This was something I always enjoyed so was just happy to help and learn more about how it all works.
