ONE-HOUR SERIALIZED DRAMA • CONSPIRACY THRILLER

LOGLINE

In 1987 Nebraska, sixteen-year-old football phenom Jack Rowan survives an impossible injury—and awakens abilities that expose his entire life as the product of a buried Cold War experiment. Hunted by the program that made him, Jack must decide whether the father who raised him is his protector… or his jailer.

1987. NEBRASKA. A LIFE BUILT ON A LIE BEGINS TO COME APART.

THE SERIES

Jack’s body heals too quickly. His senses reach too far. Under pressure, something inside him bends the physical world. What begins beneath Friday-night lights expands into a paranoid conspiracy thriller about stolen identity, weaponized science, and a family built around one devastating lie.

FOOTBALL IS THE CATALYST.
NOT THE PREMISE.

PROJECT HELIX

1963

A covert American program begins turning human inheritance into strategic advantage. Arthur Patrick manifests force. Katarina Cranston reads and alters emotional states. Kalin (Jack), their son, combines power with something his parent's never achieve: stability.

KALIN: VIABLE. STABLE. UNIQUE.

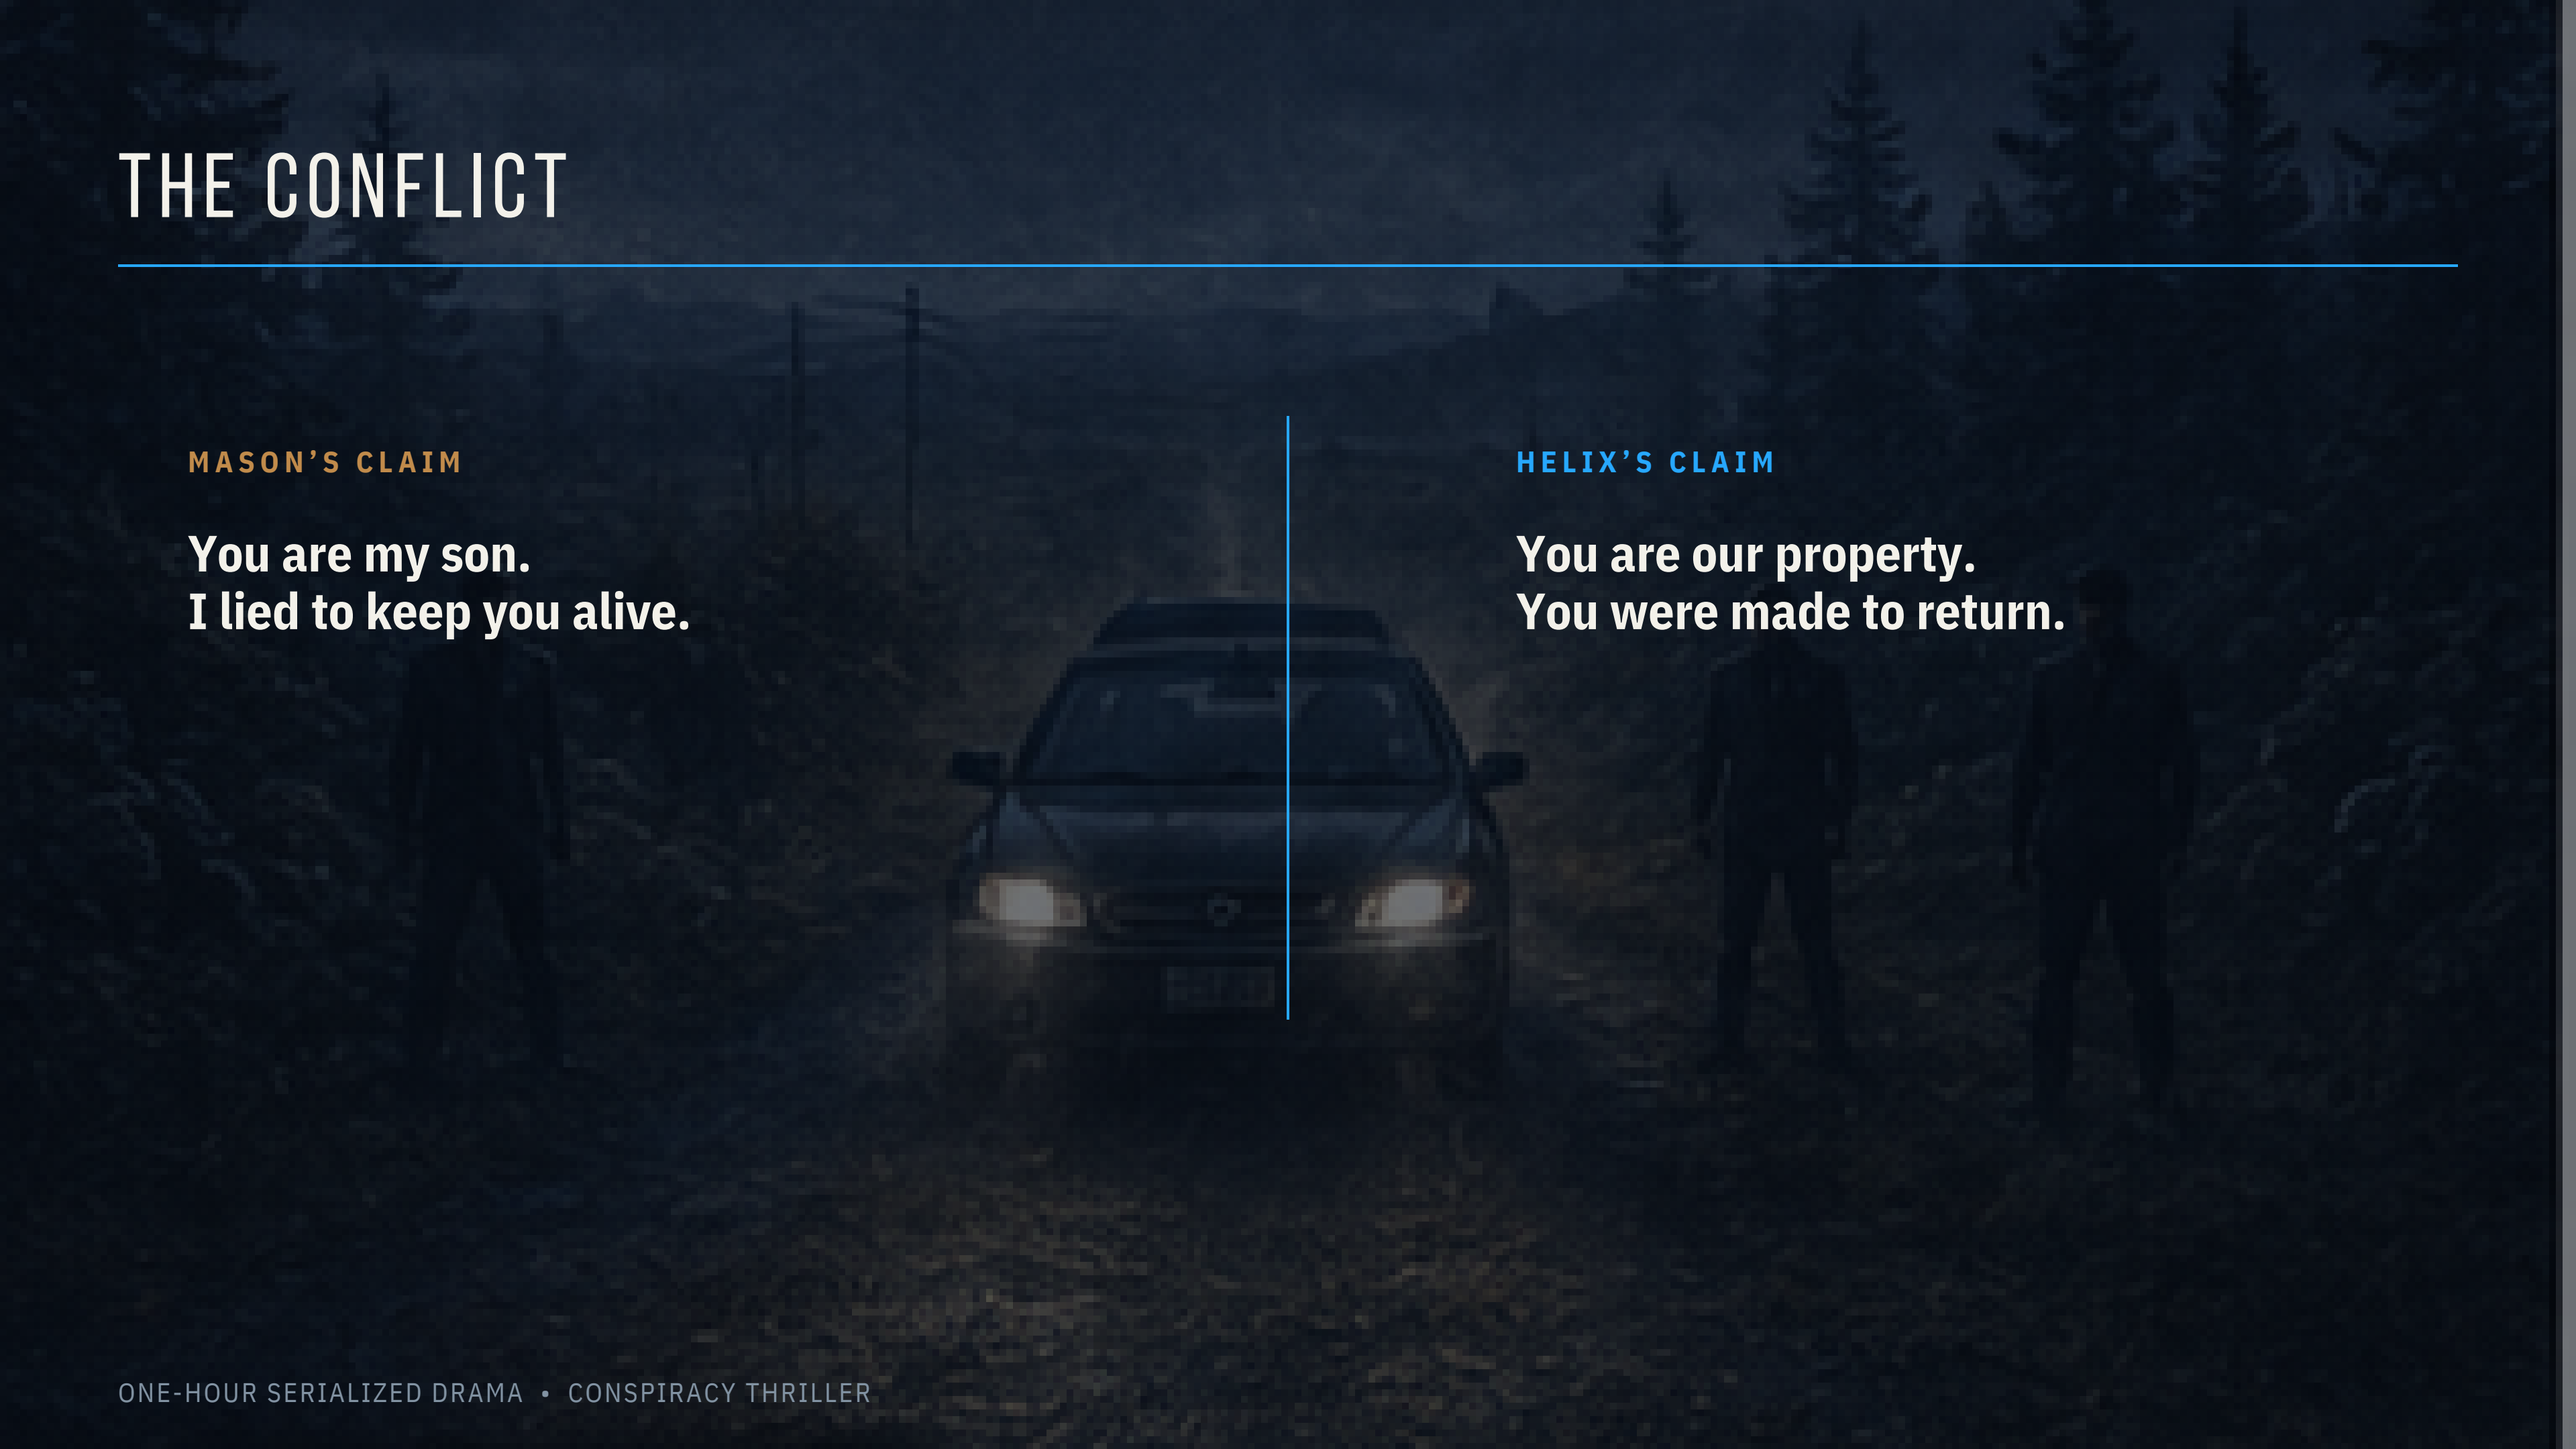
THE CONFLICT



MASON'S CLAIM

You are my son.
I lied to keep you alive.

HELIX'S CLAIM

You are our property.
You were made to return.

CORE CHARACTERS

JACK ROWAN — Sixteen. Gifted, loyal, and suddenly impossible.

JOHN ROWAN — His father by choice; keeper of the lie.

DAVE — Best friend, witness, and stubborn moral compass.

LISA — First love; too perceptive to accept the cover story.

ANDREW — A rival drawn into Jack’s expanding orbit.

SIDNEY GODDARD

Goddard does not see Jack as a boy. He sees the first clean proof that Helix worked—and the only surviving bridge to his life’s work. Patriotism is the language he uses. Scientific possession is the truth beneath it.

NOT A PATRIOT.
A BELIEVER.

SEASON ONE — THE LIFE THAT WAS STOLEN

Jack begins the season hunted, clinging to the life Mason built for him. Each answer fractures that life further: another subject, another buried facility, another family memory engineered to protect him. By the finale, survival is no longer enough.

THEMES

IDENTITY VS. OWNERSHIP

The man who made you—or the man who stayed?

Protection becomes another kind of cage.

SCIENCE WITHOUT RESTRAINT
Discovery stripped of conscience.

NATURE VS. NURTURE
What is inherited, and what is chosen?

THE WORLD

1987 means no phones in pockets, no instant records, no easy proof. Secrets live in filing cabinets, local silences, and roads that disappear into weather.

OPEN SKIES / WINDOWLESS ROOMS
WARM HOMES / COLD LABS
ORDINARY LIFE / NEON-BLUE PHENOMENA

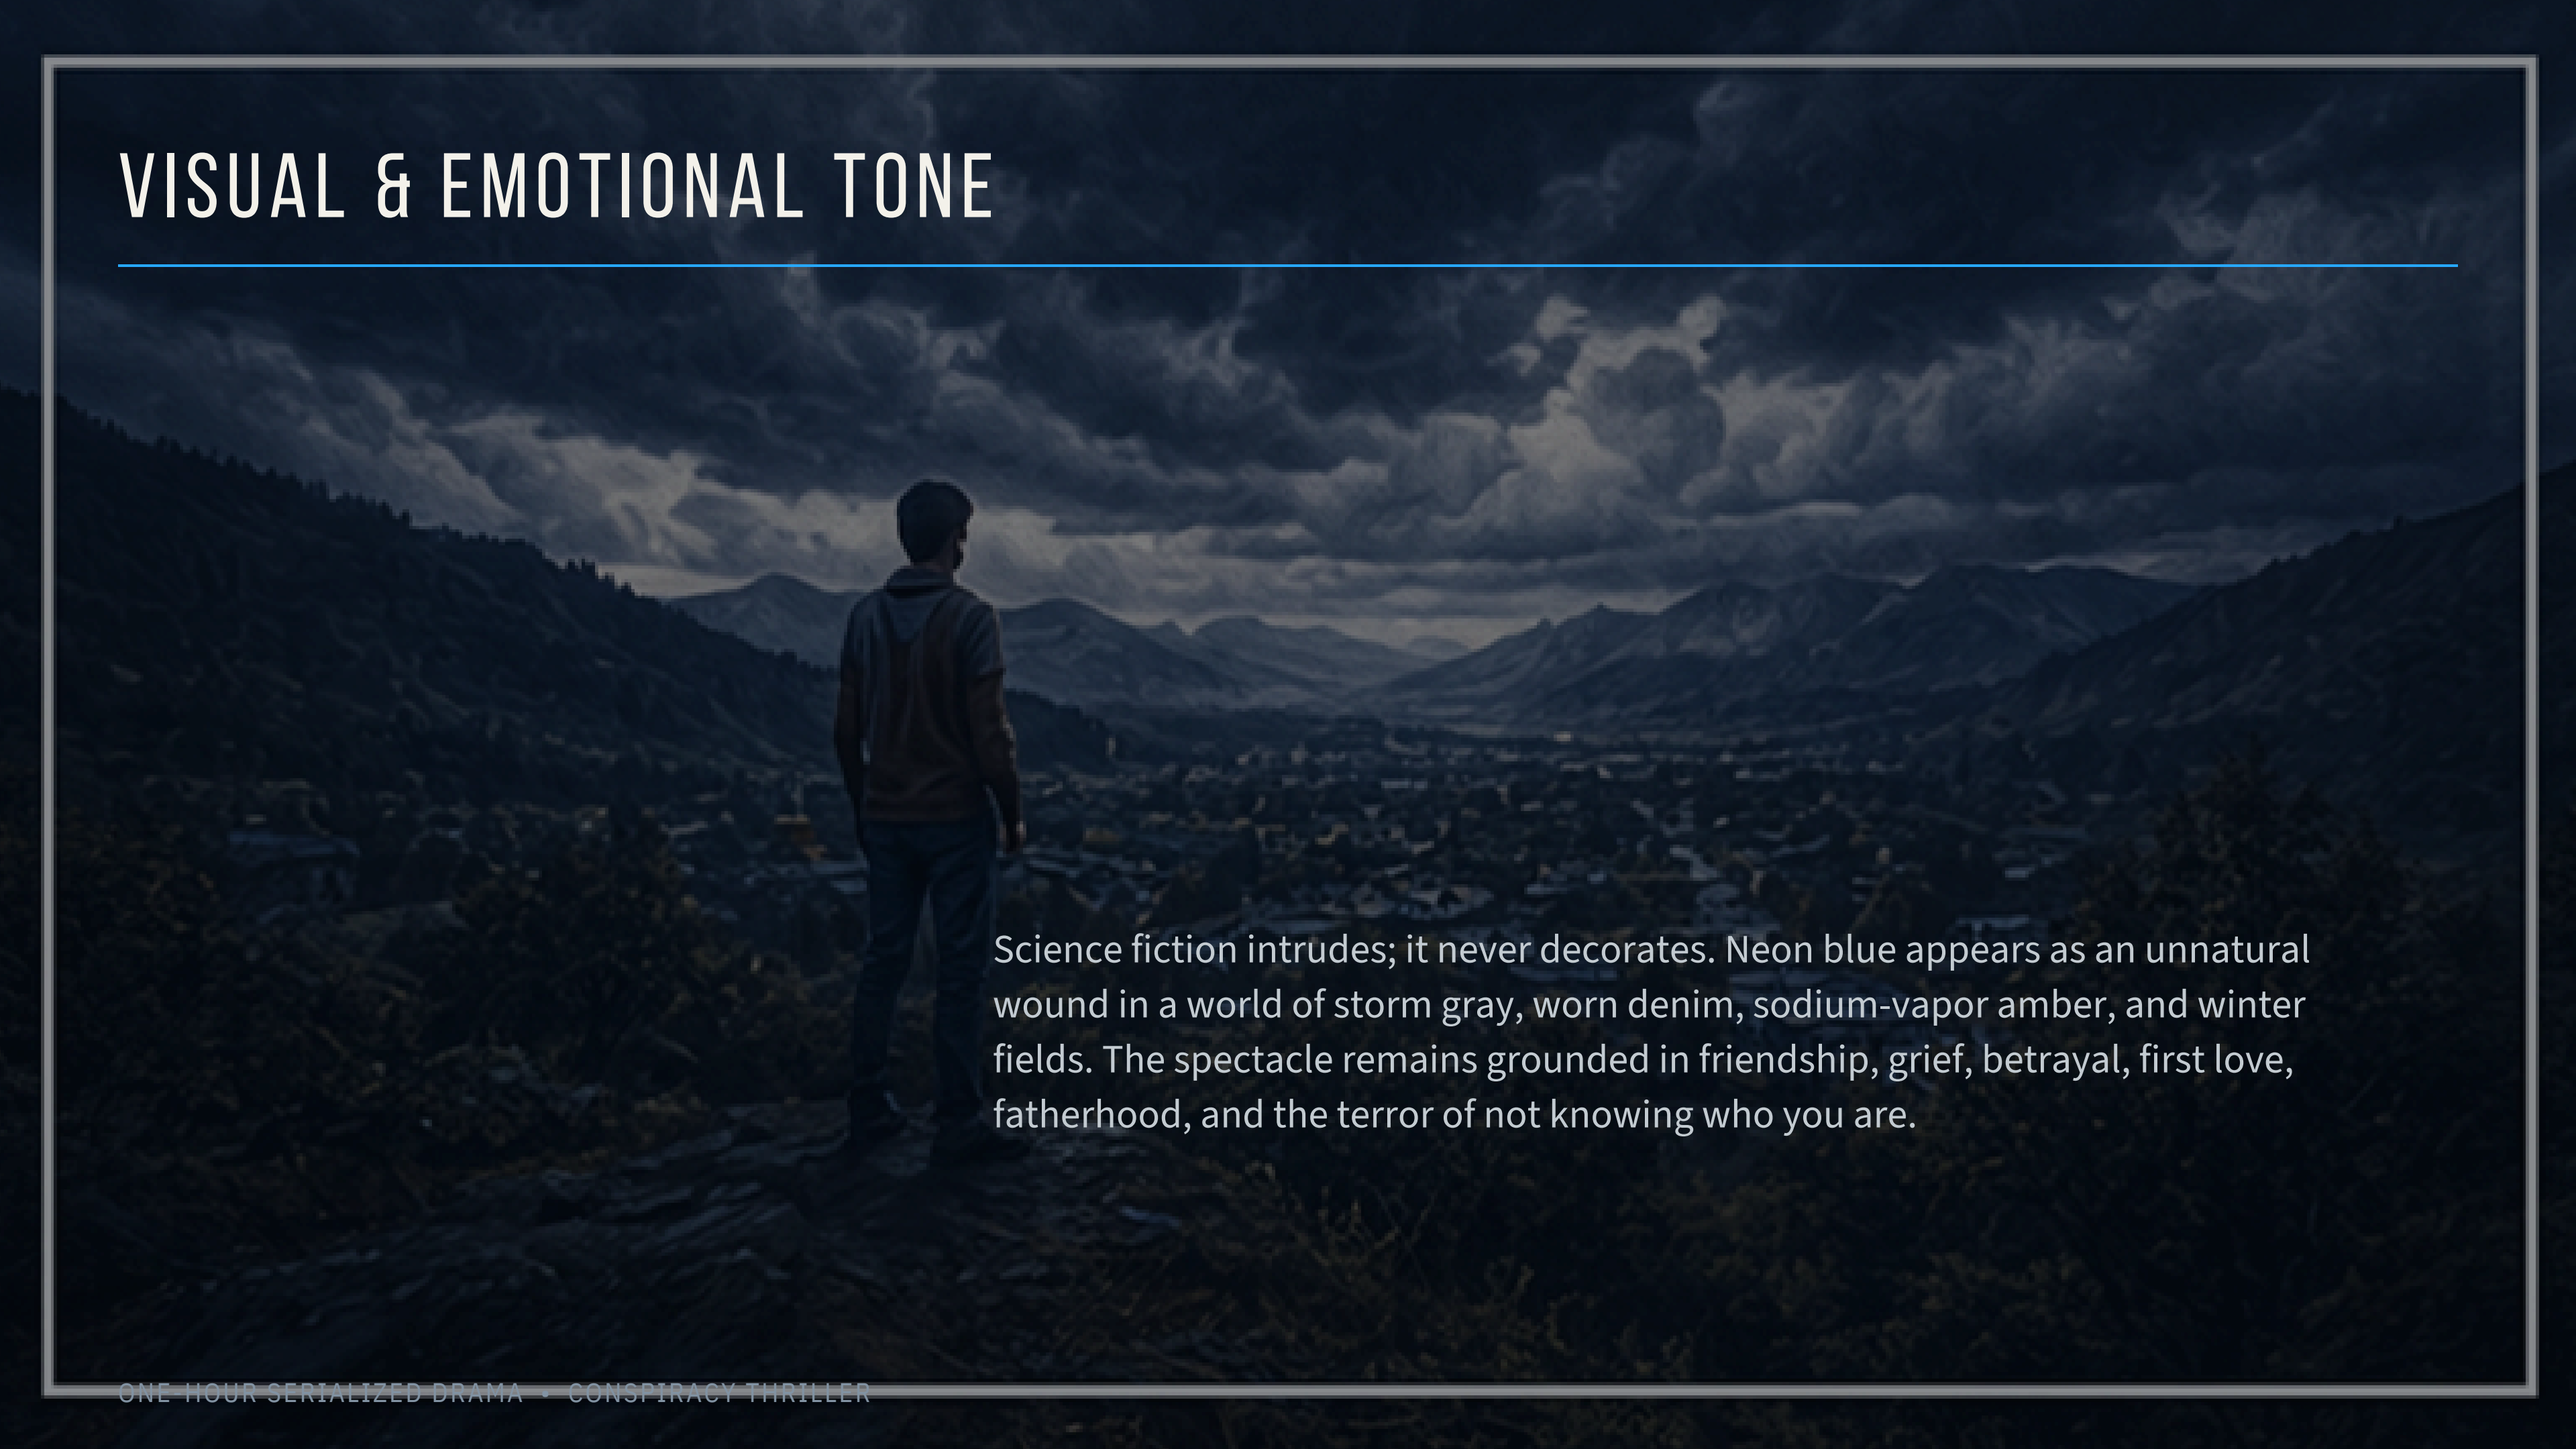
VISUAL & EMOTIONAL TONE



Science fiction intrudes; it never decorates. Neon blue appears as an unnatural wound in a world of storm gray, worn denim, sodium-vapor amber, and winter fields. The spectacle remains grounded in friendship, grief, betrayal, first love, fatherhood, and the terror of not knowing who you are.

WHAT MAKES DANGEROUS MIND DIFFERENT

THE POWERS ARE EVIDENCE.
NOT THE STORY.

Every manifestation is a clue—to the experiment, the inheritance, and the people still controlling the truth. The investigation evolves with the mythology. Jack's defining transformation is not from ordinary to powerful, but from fleeing closed doors to forcing them open.
