Stars Of Speed Dating

Cindy Krampfel made her directing debut in 2015 with Speed Dating, a short film following two women who are just looking for love. Krampfel has been a part of nearly 20 projects, including web series, short and feature length films as a script supervisor and director.

She loves her film family and has worked with Bouncy Boxer Media several times.

“I like that this female-led production company is encouraging female empowerment in the [film] industry,” she said.

Lexi Balestrieri plays Brooke, one of the leading ladies looking for love in Bouncy Boxer Media’s newest comedy, Speed Dating.

Balestrieri began acting at age 12, performing at her local theater. At 21, she started acting in film and commercials. She is most recognized for her work in Amcot advertising, and as one of the co-creators, and familiar faces, of Bouncy Boxer Media movies. She is ready to take on grittier roles in television and film.

“I love intelligent but imperfect characters,” she said. “Anything with a good story and multi-dimensional female roles.” Balestrieri is an actor, director and writer, and is currently working on a web series.

Chelsea Wolf plays Traci, one of the leading ladies looking for love in Bouncy Boxer Media’s newest comedy, Speed Dating.

Wolf began acting in high school, and in 2011 she began her professional film career. As one of the co-creators, Bouncy Boxer Media, Wolf has been a familiar face in Bouncy Boxer films, including the web series Relation Shipwreck.

“Wolf is one of those smiling faces on set,” said Stefanie Davis, founder of Bouncy Boxer Media. “Her positive attitude is infectious.”

David McMahon plays Will, a fabulous dating candidate, in Bouncy Boxer Media's newest comedy, Speed Dating.

McMahon discovered his love for acting as a teenager, in high school and college onstage productions. After a 20-year break, his love for acting resurfaced, and he began a new performance journey – this time, it was film!

“For me, the thrill of this business has always been exploring new roles,” he said. “I love surprising people, and myself.”

Jason Henne is a sound mixer in Tampa, Florida. His work includes sound production for Migraine Hell, Speed Dating, and most recently, he wrote and co-directed Crazy Lake, which makes its world premiere at the 2016 Sunscreen Film Festival.

Henne has been a sound mixer in Tampa for five years. He splits his time between doing sound on indie films in the area and working for commercial and TV projects. His audio work has opened doors and given him opportunities to write and direct feature films. Henne is starting production on another feature called Seeing Evil that is being shot in Tampa/St. Petersburg.

Stefanie Davis is the Line Producer and Assistant Director for Bouncy Boxer Media's newest comedy, Speed Dating.

Davis formed Bouncy Boxer Media in 2012 as a platform for her writing. When she met Lexi Balestrieri and Chelsea Wolf, she decided it was time to take action and expand her company to include film production. With the lack of strong female characters and women behind the camera, the trio has successfully made a dent in the industry. Their first production, Migraine Hell, has played in local festivals and Speed Dating is currently in the circuit.

Bouncy Boxer Media has several projects in post-production including episodes for their web series, Relation Shipwreck, and short films for festivals. The company is in preproduction for their first feature film now.
