

The Beautiful Street

"Life till Death"

Premiere: June 2, 2016

This is a project conceived by Daniel Kozakiewicz to bring together artists and professionals to create independent and alternative works of art. Engaging artists from various disciplines and music genres creates opportunities which inspire and stimulate the mind. Sharing experiences during the creation process breaks down the barriers which everyone erects in ordinary life. The music, which is a universal language, enables all the participants to experiment with and challenge their talents. Everyone brings in their own unique experiences to the project and by sharing them learns and expands their minds. The creation process itself is the aim of all that activity and the final result comes as just "a side effect".

In this piece of music, the authors ventured to have combined such genres as hip-hop, world music, rock, pop latino, opera, mazurka, soul and salsa. This eclectic style is also recognized in the picture itself, it is a mixture of a classical film, a documentary and animation with elements derived from social media and mobile devices. The song complemented by the video clip tells a story of every-day reality in today's world, focusing on the affirmation of life. In a sense, it is a manifest of values which we endure on a daily basis. The narrative is provocative in places, taking the audience on a journey through meanders of the modern-day life. The song and the video clip "Life till Death" is a debut of this group. More than fifty people from different trades have been involved in this undertaking.

The name of the group, and of the project, "The Beautiful Street" refers to Daniel Kozakiewicz' family house which for almost 30 years has been a meeting place for many interesting personalities, a typical private social club where individuals from artistic, business and political circles mingle together. The people who regularly meet there, although having different worldviews, manage to inspire one another and create a truly unique place. Thus, quite naturally, the project "The Beautiful Street" was born. The undertaking in which all those driven, who feel the urge to act, are welcome to take part and use their talent, experience, skills and contacts. All involved in the project are art lovers and work purely for pleasure, fulfilling their inner desire to create.
