

Remo Camero & Joel James may be the first to create an entire Animoji Band in an original music video using the iPhone X and Animoji's

Black Light, the official new video clip of the Duo's first collaborative efforts, is set to be a huge hit. Who would have thought that Animoji's jamming it out would look so cool! They certainly did and are now the first to use iPhone X Animoji's mixed with live action to create the most unique music video to come along in years.

The track started out as a musical experiment by Remo using old analogue technology then mixed it with the new sounds of Joel James Live. iPhone Animoji's were not even invented yet, but as soon as they were, the boys saw the potential of creating something unique in using these crazy critters as the backdrop for their new single. The rest is history.

Apples constant evolution of technology enables users worldwide to create great things and these guys took it one step further.

You gotta see it to believe it, so feast your eyes on Monky James, Robo Camero, Piggy Stardust and Panda McCarrtney blast out this Animoji anthem for the new millennium!
