About me

Once upon a time I fell in love with animation and that's how the story began. I always enjoyed watching animated characters movements, most of the times they where enchanting and I knew I had to start something that would some how express my feelings, from high school I started to draw all kinds of characters from fan arts to portrait of my family and friends, and after that I got interested in digital arts and animating, and that was the time I felt the need of proper academic education in all aspects of this genre, so I took the animation exam and commenced the academic life which was also the first step towards my professional life, I'm aiming high in my career and and moving forward is the first rule I learned in Animation..
