

Frank Clay Hill OLD BANDIT TIME

Example Reviews

S. Nelson: Before I knew it, I felt tears falling down my face. It is not because it is a sad film, quite the opposite. It was that it was so touching seeing such an old timer we all can remember in our lives and all the wisdom they have shared with us. Scott has found a diamond and put the spot light on it. If you get a chance to see this film, don't miss it.

P. Reed: The documentary captured the heart and soul of the man and the festival.

C. McDowell: Had the pleasure of watching Scott McCarley's short documentary "Frank Clay Hill: Old Bandit Time" today at the Prison City Film Festival. Fantastic job Scott! Also brought back memories from 45 years ago when I ran the projectors at the Town Theatre as one of my first jobs while attending SHSU. My time does slip by.
