

Michele Olson was born in San Diego, CA. She and her family moved several times across the United States. This experience gave her a love of writing. In High School, she took her first creative writing class and found her niche in screenwriting. She earned her BA in Writing from Cardinal Stritch University.

After graduating, she moved to Atlanta, GA to work for Xerox as a Publication Specialist, specializing in proofreading and editing manuscripts. On her days off, she visited several film locations around Atlanta, GA and talked to the crews. She decided to go back to school and focus on film.

She earned her MFA in Film Production from Full Sail University. While earning her Masters, she specialized as Script Supervisor and worked on Master Thesis Films and Independent Films. Her credits include The Great Feckin' Tree, The Crime I Live In, and Breathe. Bad Magic and Clear Your Mind, two films she worked on have made it into Film Festivals. Her classmates and co-workers were very proud of her skills and recommended her for other projects, sought her help in training others, and asked for her help in writing and proofreading scripts. She also worked as Grip on a few projects, including Shoelaces and The Walk: A Christmas Story. She continues to work as a Script Supervisor and write screenplays, ranging in genre from Thriller to Historical Fiction. She is moving to Atlanta, GA to pursue her career in film.
