TITLE: THE FEELER

Written by Christan van Slyke

Genre: Supernatural Drama Suspense

Synopsis:

Camron, a loner teen, has just lost her father, with whom she is very close. She is forced to live with her narcissistic mother, who abandoned them not too long ago. After the funeral of her father, Camron learns via an experience with her mother and a horrible headache, that she has a unique gift of healing. She retreats to a beautiful tree that her father used to take her to often. They call it "their spot."

After discovering her gift of healing, Camron is determined to master it and find it's origins. She learns from her mother that she inherited this gift from her father and a long line of family successors. She learns her father actually died from attempting to heal someone in a horrible accident. One day after school she runs into Trevor, the new kid in town, who quickly becomes a love interest and accidentally discovers her gift. Trevor actually begins to help Camron heal from her fathers death and hone in this new ability. They work together to keep the gift a secret.

After learning that the true origins of this healing gift actually stems from the tree that her father used to take her to, Camron is overwhelmed and Trevor insists they go to the school dance to blow off some steam. While at the dance, Trevor gets a call from his mother that his brother, who is in the hospital is about to die. Trevor recruits Camron who reluctantly attempts to heal his brother. On the way out of the hospital, Camron can't help herself and winds up sneaking around to try and heal as many people as possible without being caught. The next morning they are at the coffee shop, after leaving the hospital and learn via "Breaking News" that a miracle mass healing has happened at the hospital, dozens are healed over night. We conclude the story with Trevor and Camron eventually getting married and having children of their own. We finish up with a family picnic around the tree, that includes Camrons long lost family members, with the same gift, that have been in hiding as well.
