SYNOPSIS

Inspired by The Sixth Sense & television series A Haunting, Resident 906 is a story about Sam Pelmore, a talented paranormal investigator who leads a team of ghost hunters with her empathic gift of sensing paranormal activity. Accompanied by her best friend Sarah Washington and fellow members Laura Askew and Bailey Thomas; they have helped numerous people solve paranormal mysteries in their hometown.

One day, Sam and her team investigate Residence 906, a place known for its dark history and brutal deaths. The investigation starts routine, Sam explores the house trying to locate a presence while Sarah documents with her camera while Bailey and Laura use their technical equipment to see if they can get readings.

Sam makes contact with a presence and opens her energies to it to help the entity manifest, but before she knows it the demon peers into her memories and finds her team's deepest regrets and uses them to influence her team into killing themselves. Bailey regretful of being unable to save her childhood friend from drowning- drowns herself. Laura regretful of surviving a car crash that killed her mom- throws herself down the stairs and breaks her neck. Sarah regretful of not saving her boyfriend from depression and hanging himself- strangles herself with her camera strap.

It's been 5 years since Sam has been in that house; until Taylor arrives at Sam's doorstep with the camera that used to belong to her sister Sarah- she wants closure. Taylor was devastated by Sarah's death and devoted herself to finding out what happened to her sister. After years of scientific research yielding no answers. Taylor shares the last camera footage of Sara's death with Sam. As the tension builds between Sam and Taylor over returning to Residence 906; Sam finally caves and agrees to return to the Victorian residence as she knows the demon will continue to haunt her and possibly kill Taylor so she must face her fears and help protect Taylor who is determined to visit the house one way or another.

Sam and Taylor take the investigation files and explore the residence- tracing the deaths of the demised teammates. Sam reveals that the first owners practiced Dark Arts that unleashed an ancient demon. Taylor refuses to believe in demons, but slowly begins to suspect that ghosts may exist. She grows impatient when she doesn't receive any answers. Unaware of just how powerful the demon is, she locks herself in a room and calls out the demon. She quickly falls under the demon's influence and she begins to strangle herself. Sam catches the action in the nick of time and the demon leaves Taylor alone; turning it's attention to Sam.

Sam has her showdown with the demon. She takes out the purple crystal and points it at the demon. The crystal provides Sam with enough positive, cleansing energy needed to vanquish the demon. She traps the demon into the crystal, which turns the crystal black, signifying his vanquish.

Morning comes and Taylor awakens to a warm house with soft lights- peaceful and calming energy to the residence. She leaves the bedroom and finds the black crystal on the floor, but does not see Sam. Sam calls out to Taylor, but Taylor doesn't see her.
