The Story of the Making of Vampria: The Toothless Vampire

Ali and Fatimah, born and raised in Auckland, New Zealand came up with the story of Vampria. The idea of a toothless vampire was originally created when Fatimah at a younger age lost her primary teeth (milk teeth). While eating a beetroot, her mouth became red as if she had drunk blood like a vampire. She turned to the family and said, “Look! I’m a vampire.” Then dad replied as a joke, “A toothless vampire.” This became a joke for a while. A few years later the story of Vampria: The Toothless Vampire was turned into an animated film. The name Vampria is a combination of the word Vampire and the name Priya (a common name of Sanskrit origin).

Ali was already experienced with animation work (2D and 3D) having created several Youtube series, CGI works and 3D gaming software by age 11.

Vampria: The Toothless Vampire is the result of 8 months of work by Ali and Fatimah. All animation work, sound effects, lighting and editing has been done by Ali using his home computer. He did this using software such as Blender 2.81, Adobe Premiere Pro and Adobe Photoshop and other simple audio software available to him.

For the sound effects he used simple tools and materials lying around the house and a simple microphone.

Having almost a budget of zero, (other than what was spent on material for delivering the film to the film festival) the creative skills of Ali and Fatimah are the real reason for the production of the film proving that neither age nor money needs to be a barrier for creativity. Fatimah was the main writer of the original story and Ali did the screenplay. Family members were asked to do the voice acting with some voices being digitally altered to represent different characters.

Process of Voice Recording

The story of Vampria tries to show the effects of bullying and to encourage children to eliminate this problem. Although many people identify the hurt they feel when they are bullied it is difficult for many people to realize different levels of bullying in any society. The story of Vampria attempts to show that bullying can have many different levels. In the case of Vampria she discovers that Vampires have also been bullying humans when experiencing bullying from fellow vampires.

Ali Soltanian Fard Jahromi (Producer, Director and Animator)

The multi-talented Ali Soltanian Fard Jahromi (12 years old) has 5 years of experience in animation. He first started an animated series at age 8 called Lion and Tiger's Adventures created through drawings done in Microsoft Paint which he subsequently put on his Youtube channel. After some experience in the field of animation and software required for animation he created the series Chicken the Tricky One (again on his Youtube channel) using Adobe Flash. From there he moved on to learning and creating computer artwork and CGI videos some of which can be found online on his channel.

Ali ventured into game creation and made a 3D game called Invasion Resistance with the story, design, CGI cut scenes and gameplay done entirely by Ali himself using Blender (for the design) and Unreal Engine (for the game).

In his personal life Ali has a passion for animation, CGI, 3D artwork and game development. His awareness of multiple languages and cultural issues helps him incorporate social issues and diversity into some of his animation.
