To: The Sundance Film Festival committee Re: The Monster Inside Me – Feature Documentary Submission

Dear
Committee:

It is with great pride and honor that we were a part in this incredible journey of the filmmakers Tony Silva, Frances Martinez and Ryan Martin. Through our own health struggles that could have taken our lives, our empathy goes out to all of those suffering. Moreover, watching these three go through their own suffering and battles, makes this film very unique and adds a layer of warmth and comfort in knowing that there are people in this world that are suffering just like you. The faith and spirit of hope and ambition to survive and never giving up is the paramount theme we intended to bring forth as Executive Producers on this amazing story of journeys.

Not only is Lyme Disease grossly misunderstood by the public at large, it is too often dispelled as a bonafide diagnosis within the current allopathic medical community. This must stop and those that are suffering from unknown ailments can watch this movie and hopefully begin to take control of their own conditions by forcing testing and asking more and more questions. Too often the public is left to trust that a doctor's diagnosis is the end all, be all. It is not.

In the current disruption of the world by the Covid-19 pandemic, it is of grave importance that those suffering from other diseases and ailments not be forgotten. The world must continue on, as must we as a society continue to never stop trying to overcome our own conditions whatever that may be.

We view this film as a beacon of hope for anyone suffering from any disease but in particular, those that don't yet know what is going on with their own bodies. If this film can save just one life, by having them go test for Lyme Disease, it will not have been in vain.

The dedication and tremendous efforts of everyone involved in this film deserves to be recognized and seen by as many people as at all possible.

With faith and hope, we write this letter to lend our support in being chosen for your prestigious film festival. I have 3 films that have been to Sundance and I pray this is my 4th!

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Respectfull y,
