

Perfect Messy Love - Long Synopsis

EMILY, an aspiring romance author, leads the perfect inner city life. However after being left jobless following the bookshop closing down and betrayed after finding her boyfriend kissing Barbie outside the pub, Em is motivated by her bestie BIANCA, to go and write her book. Perfect timing or not!

Em organises a house swap with MATT, on the Sunshine Coast. He's an easy going landscape gardener and a bit of a country lad. Definitely not her type! Nor is the dog he has lumped on her to care for in this imperfect deal. Em settles in to his beach house and embraces a Queensland Christmas where she meets James, the international pilot, who asks Em out. Em is tempted but tries to resist given he is exactly who she is escaping from in the city.

Meanwhile, Em and Matt develop a rapport over Facetime. Matt encourages Em in her writing. Em espouses her theories on love – that people have to have the same interests for the romance to survive. Em is fascinated by Matt but holds back, as who is the girl in the photos hidden in his cupboard? And why won't he talk about her. Matt also holds back, he has past secrets that he is sure Emily won't accept. Before Em has a chance to find out anything more, her bestie Bianca comes across Matt and commences a hot fling with him. Em's sad she missed out, so she decides she may as well give things a go with James.

When Matt returns to Queensland unexpectedly, Emily and Matt are forced to confront their differences. Once Emily can see Matt for who he is and finds out the truth about his past, she must now decide where her heart lies and whether she can be true to herself. Emily wants the perfect love but is now finding out that maybe love can only ever be perfectly messy!
