LOGLINE

“And we wept that one so lovely, should have a life so brief;” a week in the life of a family wrought by tragedy.

SYNOPSIS

Inspired by a Dallas tragedy that made headlines, JADED seeks to raise awareness about the growing epidemic of suicide by shining a light on the loved ones left behind. After the Nash family’s 16-year-old daughter commits suicide, we watch as the family unravels.

MARCIA CARROLL WRITER/DIRECTOR/EXEC. PRODUCER

JADED is a work of fiction inspired by a true story that made headlines. After my best friend's 16-year-old daughter committed suicide, our worlds obliterated into a million frozen, fractured, jagged little pieces. When I finally sat down at my computer to hash it all out, my fingers attacked the keyboard in rapid succession fleshing out a story in two hours that had been smoldering within for three years.

What began as a therapeutic outlet morphed into a passion project that jump-started my life. I needed a channel for my grief, and this venture became my pipeline. Writing, producing, directing and acting in this film led me on a path to healing in ways that are as true and clear and palpable as my beating heart.

I know some may think it was irresponsible to shoot a movie during the pandemic, but I disagree. I believe the controlled environment we created on set was far safer than a visit to the grocery store. We were able to schedule the shoot during a time when the pandemic was locally contained, doubled the budget to accommodate all CDC, SAG, Texas Film Commission and OSHA safety restrictions and regulations, conducted regular health screenings prior to and during the shoot, had everyone rapid tested, provided individual PPE kits, separated the set into zones with designated seating, served individually packaged boxed meals, incorporated strict guidelines while filming, and were able to complete the shoot within three days without incident.

My first movie brought together a collaborative group of creatives eager to make a difference by spreading awareness about the rising epidemic of suicide, and its devastating effects, during an unbelievably challenging time. In the end, against all odds, we safely produced a film in the hopes of changing a life for the better. It already has. Mine.

MARCIA CARROLL/HOPE

Is currently celebrating the completion of her first SAG Short film, JADED, a project she wrote, directed, produced and starred in. A proud member of AEA/SAG-AFTRA/WIFD/WIFTI, she is a former news writer/associate producer/undercover investigator for both CBS and NBC News, show host for the QVC Shopping Channel, and community columnist for the Dallas Morning News. She recently directed a production of Love Letters as a fundraiser for the Grace Loncar Foundation, completed the play, Grandmère, she plans to produce, played the role of Mrs. McGregor in the award-winning SAG short, Red Dots, and is gearing up to direct a documentary later this year. Having accumulated dozens of professional acting credits over the years including industrial films, commercials, and stage work, she values most her involvement as a board member and actor for the Contemporary Theatre of Dallas where she worked for over a decade. She studied with Broadway Director Terry Schreiber, Beatrice Straight/Jim Boerlin at Michael Chekhov Acting Studio, and at the American Academy of Dramatic Art.

Todd TERRY/GABE

A veteran of TV/Film/Theater for 30 years, Todd just completed production on the second season of the series Vindication currently available on Amazon, and can be seen opposite Patricia Heaton and Zachary Levy in the film Unbreakable Boy coming out later this year. Additional film credits include Five Feet Apart, Unplanned, Beyond the Farthest Star, Because of Gracia, Waiting for the Miracle to Come, Arlington Road, Summers Shadow, Fissure and Walking Tall II. He has co-starred or recurred on such shows as Fear the Walking Dead, Mr. Mercedes, American Crime, Breaking Bad, Drop Dead Diva, Dallas, My Generation, Chase, Walker-Texas Ranger, Friday Night Lights, and Wishbone. He studied theater at The National Youth Theater of Great Britain, American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco and Professional Actors Conservatory in Los Angeles. Commercial credits include Pepsi, Braum's, American Airlines, Blockbuster, TXU, Home Title Lock, Texas Oncology, Mutual of Omaha, & Visionworks to name a few.

AUSTIN TERRY/FINN

TV/Film credits include SKAM Austin, Vindication, The Other Brother, Butterfly, and The Fourth Wall. Commercial credits include Whataburger, Six Flags, Wheel of Fortune, Nerf, and Cooper Tires. Austin is signed with the Campbell Agency.
