

"The directorial debut from veteran actor Michael Ochotorena, FADED MEMORIES, showcases a deep concern for problems of the elderly, blended with humor, and features memorable acting performances in a suspenseful tour de force with terrifying twists and turns."

—John Russo, Co-Creator, Night of the Living Dead

FRANK MASON IS LOSING HIS MIND...
HIS NEIGHBORS ARE LOSING THEIR LIVES!

SYNOPSIS:

Army veteran Frank Mason (Greg Mason, Strange Friends, Godsend) is losing his memory and his son Tom (Gary Lee Vincent, Midnight, My Uncle John is a Zombie) is desperate to try anything to help his dad, including allowing him to be part of a clinical trial of the military's latest drug for mental acuity in combat, Deimosomine.

However, no one can fathom the drug's sinister side effect: it turns people into psychopathic homicidal maniacs, and the bodies are starting to pile up!

"In an age where the thought police are looking to cancel anyone that offends them it's great to see artists pushing boundaries and doing what the hell they want... hats off with the dark comedy Faded Memories."

—Adam Joad, Rockstar, Scattered Hamlet
