Genre & Duration: Drama, 11 minutes

Tagline:

A coming of age about aging.

Logline:

After the recent death of her husband, an elderly woman attempts to skip the wake and revisit the beach where they first met, but her memory is fading.

Synopsis:

After the recent death of her husband an elderly woman, Marisol, sinks in her newfound solitude. Completely in denial, Marisol believes the morgue will call any minute now and return her husband, Mateo, home safely. Marisol's grief and fear of letting go clashes with Vera, her granddaughter, who believes it's more important to face Mateo's casket and say goodbye one last time. This film explores the parallels of grief at opposite stages of womanhood and the bonds that shared loss and lack of closure can form.
