

iBinalogue.

Renata Flores - Pachamama

Styling by SAKE

Pachamama X SAKE

DRESSING MOTHER NATURE WITH SUSTAINABLE FASHION FOR PLANET EARTH.

Pachamama stylism is a collection of 4 eco-friendly, culture-conscious looks.

All fabrics were obtained from sustainable resources of local communities and treated with zero impact, non-chemical processes.

The resulting items were 100% hand sewn following fair trade best practices by a team of Sake designers that include indigenous women.

PARADISE

PAICHE

Named after one of the greatest and most majestic fishes in the Amazon river.

Crochet jacket covered with natural fish scales.
Organic linen, naturally-dyed skirt and top.

Paiche embodies the everflowing life of nature when you use and respect all of its resources.

Fish skin was obtained from sustainable resources in the Amazon, working with Pucallpa fishermen to protect the natural lagoons.

YEVYAYÁ

YEMAYÁ

Named after a major water spirit from the Yorubas.

Ecru-colored, alpaca-wool dress with organic linen sleeves and virgin wool braids with root-shaped patterns. Nose ring inspired by the shamanic culture of Kene.

Yemayá represents the organic shapes and ancestral roots of nature.

Dress was 100% hand-woven following fair trade best practices.

Alpaca wool and linen are two of the most eco friendly fabrics worldwide due to the limited water and energy resources needed for their production. As long as they remain undyed, wool and linen are also 100% biodegradable.

Q'ESWIA
CHAKKA

Q'ESWA CHAKA

Named after the last last Inca hanging bridge that still stands today.

One-sleeved, vegetable leather jacket with scottish-patterned, organic cotton skirt, strapless body and boots.

Q'eswachaka personifies Pachamama's resistance. The hanging bridge keeps standing thanks to the effort of local men and women that still celebrate the minka, a mutual ritual to thank Pachamama for her loving care.

Jacket was colored using natural dyes only and the organic cotton skirt was woven on a classic treadle loom by Junin artisans.

YEMMA

YEWÁ

Named after the Orisha who leads the dead.

Yewá, known as the wise warrior, symbolizes female purity and wisdom.

Cape dress made of organic, hand painted linen from the Yanesha ethnicity in the Peruvian Amazonia.

Decorated with jaguar and snake skin patterns to protect the Pachamama from the dangers of the jungle, just like the ancient hunters did in the Andean cloud forest.

Hair sculpting and jewelry are inspired from ancestral tribal rites where the ruler was characterized as a supernatural being.

A woman in traditional Mexican attire, including a red and purple patterned blouse and a white shawl, is performing in a cemetery at night. She is holding a bouquet of white flowers and has her arms outstretched. The background shows tombstones and a building with murals.

Renata Flores

PAOCHA IVAYIVA

CLICK HERE TO WATCH THE MUSIC VIDEO

Thnx!

binalogue.com
hola@binalogue.com

sake.eco
info@sake.eco

iBinalogue.