

Little Things Mean a Lot

Original Biographical Screenplay by Michael Monteith

By the time she appeared on stage of the London Palladium, the most popular singer in the U.S. had endured the childhood loss of her mother, the gauntlet of travelling big bands and Frank Sinatra's efforts to destroy her career but nothing prepared her for the challenge she was about to face.