SYNOPSIS

A grumpy driver installs a technical upgrade to his old car with unexpected results.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

I love my old Volvo "Harvey" and I've wanted to feature him in a film for ages. Built in 1965, his days are probably numbered. A family group-quarantine waiting for PCR results was the ideal opportunity to get out the camera.

I only had a few days with my lead actor Erich Wittenberg (a family member, visiting from Germany) so I jumped in and used a phone, which was great for mounting all over the outside of the car and getting those tight interior shots. I know this meant a more rudimentary visual style but the phone offered a great way to capture the story without a crew, in the time I had available.

I hope you enjoy the film!
