Note from the creator

'El Sol' tells the story of two best friends and the simplicity of how beautiful this is.

Throughout my life, I've seen and experienced loss, body changes and deep friendship. But I rarely see these accurately depicted on screen.

I want to change how we talk about the things we are most scared of. And that starts with 'El Sol'. A short film about grief, the body, and the truest kind of love.

irector's Note

CAITLIN HILL

"Anna Patch lights up the screen. Her smile is bright as the sun and she has a soul to match. I don't know anyone who does not become lighter around her. "

I wanted to be a part of 'El Sol' because of its sweet simplicity. These little moments of healing can be what helps others begin their own healing journeys, and it doesn't have to belong to some epic fantasy or overseas blockbuster, it's as simple as next door, with your bestie, just talking and chilling.

Anna's story and this film is for the lofi world. It's cozy and still here, a place where we put down our phone screens, blink away the blue light, and witness something golden.
