Director Statement

"What is the sin of thinking?"

"Why is it a sin to think?"

How sad it would be if there is a day I don't even dare to think and stop myself to think.

"Untold Herstory" is about a group of female thought prisoners who cannot stop thinking.

Their minds are set free, but their bodies are imprisoned, oppressed, and killed because of their thoughts.

Such absurdities are not far from now, and those mothers of our mothers may still have lingering fears about the past.

Sincerely hoping these absurdities are over and gone forever, while the reality is that they're still repeating in other corners of the world. We can only pass on the stories as a reminder of them. Otherwise, the power of absurdity may come back any time.

On Green Island in the 1950s, the female thought prisoners chose to fight for freedom, but were more forcefully suppressed by the authority.

They held on to their beliefs and hoping for true freedom to come.

Hsing-Hui Yu , an innocent student, is inexplicably sentenced as a thought criminal and sent to Fire Island for rehabilitation.

She sustains the bullying from the officer and the snitching from other new students. There are still other prisoners helping her struggle to survive. At the same time, the Department launches a movement which causes a rebellion.

When the prisoners think the resistance is successful, the more forceful purge is befalling while the light of freedom is yet to come.
