

BIO:

A dramedy writer/director/producer and daughter of formerly undocumented immigrants, Gabby Revilla Lugo started her career in physical production then ventured into the independent feature space where she worked with names like Damian Chazelle on his award-winning short film, Whiplash. She had success with films including the award-winning Palm Springs, The Starling, and Fox Searchlight's Next Goal Wins, written and directed by Taika Waititi. Gabby was staffed on ABC's hit drama, A Million Little Things, and taught screenwriting at the Script Anatomy school. In 2021 Gabby sold multiple projects landing a feature film writing job for Mattel. She also sold 15 Candles, a TV pilot based on John Hughes' 16 Candles, to Peacock, alongside UCP and OJALA, led by award-winning screenwriter, Tanya Saracho. She worked on the TV series Brujas and completed the 2022 WGA's showrunner training program and the 2022 Starz Program for underrepresented writers. Gabby has several TV projects in development, including one yet to be announced with Linda Yvette Chavez, and a show with Teri Weinberg and Legendary based on a popular book series. She is set to direct her first feature film for Marvista in 2024. She is repped by Aaron Lipsett at Heroes and Villains Entertainment and Chris Abrahamson at Felker Toczek Suddleson Abramson McGinnis Ryan.
