

U.S. EMBASSY TUNIS

The English Language Team

Invites you to a workshop entitled

The End of Homework

With American Educational Consultant

Omaira Alam

Thursday, November 15, 2018

10:00 – 11:30 a.m.

at the American Center, U.S. Embassy Tunis

About the workshop: This workshop will question the conventional approaches to homework as well as explore new possibilities of its implementation using research-based practices and examples from around the world. The workshop will explore the place of homework within the American education system while examining how it fulfills the goals for education in the 21st century.

About the speaker: Born in Scotland and raised in Toronto, Canada, Omaira Alam is an experienced educational consultant with a demonstrated history of working in education development, management and training. For almost twenty years, she has worked in public, private and continuing education settings. She is skilled in Special Education, Home Schooling, Dignified Way, Islamic Education, and Classroom Management. She is a strong educational development professional a Master's degree in Transition Special Education from The George Washington University.

Please confirm your attendance by completing this Google form <https://goo.gl/forms/XwbvJfZBkDsVoGk2> by Tuesday, November 13, 2018.