PILOT

In a world with an ever-shortening attention span, 8=0 is certain to keep the audience watching. This ADHD style pilot opens to Skinny Vinny performing an extreme stunt, shot on a phantom camera to immediately hook a viewer in. Followed by a high energy title sequence introducing our eccentric cast members.

As we dive into our first comedy sketch, we follow along as two dimwit detectives interrogate the K-Mart cradler for his alleged crimes. Those crimes being multiple counts of unsolicited ball cradling at local K-Marts.

Jumping immediately from that into an absurd public prank where Vinny turns an elevator into a public restroom, much to the un-expecting passengers surprise.

Commercial breaks call for short, hilarious transitions, including shocking fails, incredible stunts, and high energy moments to ensure the channel won't be changed.

And we're back! Now following the K-Mart Cradlers criminal court trial, we realize this justice system is a bit unorthodox. A very bizarre public defender is assigned, and in watching the proceedings there's much doubt he ever passed the bar. Did we mention the key eye witness in identifying the cradler is blind? Oh, and a few of them are on rollerblades.

Steve-O and Vinny leave for tour in Australia, and they celebrate by recreating one of Vinny's ridiculous stories from his past: "The prison Pocket"!

Another high energy commercial transition brings us back to a celebrity cameo by David Spade. We place David in a uncomfortable situation with a super-fan, and his reactions are priceless.
