

An aerial photograph of a mountain trail. A dirt path winds through a landscape of green and brown vegetation, leading down to a river. Several people on bicycles are riding along the path. In the background, a large mountain rises under a cloudy sky.

"The community that Lucy has built and cultivated with Rez Bay is inspiring and invaluable - this is obvious even from a distance. This club goes beyond just mountain biking; it's a hub for empowerment, growth, and connection. Now more than ever, young girls need like-minded support and leadership to help them grow and find themselves. Rez Bay delivers exactly that, creating an environment where they can build confidence, develop resilience, and feel a sense of belonging amidst the chaos of the digital world. Rez Bay Mountain Bike Club is the perfect example of a community making a real difference, and it is precisely what the world needs right now."
