"Deedee's Little Crappy Ships" Episode I

Deedee's career is in jeopardy after her sisters baby shower invite is sent to the Admiral who panics, mistaking the baby powder inside for anthrax. As punishment she is sent to 'Fix' the doomed LCS program, inheriting nightmare contractors, an impossible deadline, and a boat that barely floats.

"Seal Team Dicks" Episode II

Deedee makes an enemy out of the Ex-MI6 Spymaster, Dame Gregory. Things go from bad to worse when Deedee's colleague, Tim, misaligns a satellite sending the LCS on a wild goose chase for their expected cargo, Seal Team Six. Tim pleads for his job as Deedee, now pitted against Dame Gregory, is forced to explain the debacle.

"Red Sky at Night, Sailors May Fight" Episode III

Deedee and the crew of the LCS prepare for a surprise visit from the Admiral but preparations and overtime pits the sailors against the contractors and Deedee is forced to keep the peace. The Admiral's chopper, left without being refueled during the crew dust up, has to ditch in the ocean after take-off.

"Fire, Fire, Fire" Episode IV

During refueling, the LCS catches fire endangering the ship and crew. The Captain, absent, leaves XO Goldman in charge who makes the mistake of abandoning the ship to save the crew instead of using the crew as firefighters. Deedee speaks up in defense of XO Goldman, claiming the call to abandon ship saved her life as well as those on her team.

"Twenty-First Century Pirate" Episode V

Deedee has successfully brought the LCS program into real world scenarios and their first time out, the LCS crew is boarded by Pirates. Dame Gregory, Deedee and Captain Richards work together to eliminate the threat and take the fight to the littoral waters in coastal Somalia. Tim proves his worth by successfully re-routing the satellite for precision target acquisitions.

"Jarheads in a Bottle" Episode VI

The USS Independence takes a contingent of Marines on board to escort them to their next objective when the water jet propulsion fails... again. The ship comes under attack from Iranian-made drones and Dame Gregory uses the Marines to shoot down the incoming drones while Deedee and her team race to fix the Phalanx radar control. Captain Richards uses old world sailing tricks to get them out of contested

"Little Crappy Boxes" Episode VII

Deedee leaves the USS Independence to face the Naval bureaucracy in Washington, whom want to make modular replacements for mission configurations standard for the LCS Program. Deedee, now armed with real world data, finds unusual friends in Congress that help push her agenda through on single mission configurations.

"Tiny Tim" Episode VIII

Deedee returns from her successful trip to Washington, D.C. only to find her hard work undone by Tim and Dame Gregory, feuding on board the USS Independence. Rerouted work orders, scheduling errors and an overworked crew threaten to undo everything Deedee has worked for. Deedee embraces her leadership roll and is forced to let a member of her team go.

"Crazy Ivan - Part I" Episode IX

The USS Independence is used as a decoy when a top secret Russian submarine goes missing off of the contested shores of Crimea and Captain Richards' hands are tied when Dame Gregory, under mysterious orders, takes over operational command of the USS Independence. Deedee races to make the existing systems work with the new mission objectives as her plea's to the bureaucracy in D.C. hang in the balance.

"Crazy Ivan - Part II" Episode X

Deedee and Dame Gregory work together, using the LCS's advanced systems, to successfully track the missing Russian Submarine. Captain Richard's uses the untested mine laying system in an unexpected way, setting a trap for the Russians, and driving the missing submarine toward a Naval Blockade in the Turkish Straits. Following a successful operation, Deedee and the LCS program are extended for another 18 months.
