'An out-of-place American cowboy struggles to find his place in a small town in North-Western England.'

'When his prize animal goes missing, he seizes the chance for redemption and goes on the hunt to get it back.'

SYNOPSIS

'Flint, a traditional American cowboy, is at odds with his town's community in the North-West of England. After his prize sheep mysteriously disappears, Flint goes on the hunt, but he tries and fails to use his cowboy skills to find his beloved animal.

After multiple setbacks, Flint begins to doubt he can bring his sheep home and questions his life as a cowboy. When an unexpected ally gives him a lead, Flint must reignite his self-belief to win a final showdown and rescue his sheep.'
