Director's Statement

This film was inspired by my grandmother, who lives alone in a village because her children and grandchildren have moved to the city. This issue is prevalent in Indonesia, where many elderly people are neglected.

It's not just the elderly; those with mental health issues also experience the same neglect. They are often dismissed and even shunned by their own families. In this film, I unite these two issues and challenge the contradictions that exist in society. The story is set against the backdrop of a retired teacher and her student, and a community that does not support an elderly person taking care of someone with a mental health issue who has become like their own child.
