Director's Statement:

When I made this film I was a freshmen in highschool and had never made a documentary film in my life but I knew that I really wanted to. When my brother Finn told me that he and his friend Max had decided that they had watched enough Youtube videos to attempt their first ever a multi-pitch up a 500 foot cliff during Montana's November weather; I said "Now that's a story worth telling!"

This film was made with a borrowed school camera, iphones and a Gopro. It was edited on a school computer when my teacher wasn't looking and was premiered during a study hall in the classroom of my amazing spanish teacher, Profe Coco.
