

SAY MY NAME

Tagline: Her death was just the beginning

Logline: Serial killer Mason Oliver Reed, driven by a twisted passion for opera, believes his final victim has been silenced—until she returns. Wreathed in smoke and molten wounds, she stalks him through the shadows with a demonic doll at her side, whispering one command: “Say my name.”

In the shadows of death, vengeance takes on a form both haunting and unholy. What returns is not simply a victim, but something transformed—bearing molten wounds, an otherworldly fire in her eyes, and a presence that bends the air around her.

A dark, inescapable smoke trails her every step, as if the world itself recoils from her return. At the center of this haunting is a strange doll—an unsettling conduit between the living and the dead through which vengeance takes shape.

As hunter becomes hunted, Say My Name explores the blurred line between victim and avenger—and the terrifying cost of vengeance when it refuses to end.
