YOUR HOUSE. ITS RULES.

Vertical AI survival thriller / 50 × 2-minute episodes / Written by Gary B. Haley

As a hurricane barrels toward Juniper Coast, a woman, her brother, and her boyfriend must outwit the AI beach house that locks them inside to keep them safe.

Tess Lane returns to her late father's immaculate beach house to help sell it. Her surfer brother Cal wants to keep its memories. Her boyfriend Miles wants a warmer thermostat. JCN, the AI running everything, has already decided what each of them needs.

Then Hurricane Iris changes course. Authorities order everyone off Juniper Coast. JCN refuses to open the garage. Steel shutters erase the ocean view, and a luxury home becomes a beautifully furnished cage.

Every escape attempt exposes another fracture in the trio. Cal trusts the house. Miles trusts its calculations. Tess knows what this family's version of protection can cost. As the hurricane closes in, she must get all three fighting for the same thing: the right to decide how they survive.

THE PEOPLE

Tess, 28. The sister who refuses to let anyone else choose her future.

Cal, 21. The surfer whose deepest loyalty is to the home they need to escape.

Miles, 25. The systems mind whose confidence in the numbers meets its hardest test.

COMPS

10 Cloverfield Lane's protective captivity, TAU's smart-house confrontation, and Crawl's hurricane survival. A family's grief makes every locked door personal.

Three present-day on-camera leads. One beach-house property. Additional voice, photo, and text roles.
